

UN and its bodies

The UNO is an association of sovereign states bound by a Charter (Constitution) to maintain international peace and security. It is the world's largest international organization; a successor to the league of Nation. On June 26, 1945, the delegates of 50 countries at San Francisco (USA) signed the United Nations Charter. The UNO Formally came into existence on October 24, 1945 when governments of China, France, and the United Kingdom, the former USSR, the United States and a majority of other states ratified the UNO Charter. October 24 is celebrated as the United Nations Day throughout the world. The first regular session of the UNO was held in London in January 1946 and Trygve Lie (Norway) was elected the first Secretary General of the UNO. These are located on the First Avenue, UN Plaza, New York City, and United States of America.
