

Indian Rivers

Rivers are the lifeline of a nation. Rivers have been of historical importance to India considering the religious significance they command and the basic agrarian nature of a majority of Indian society.

The biggest major rivers of India are:

- Flowing into the Bay of Bengal: Brahmaputra, Ganges (with its tributaries Yamuna, Kameika, Gomti, Chambal), Meghna, Mahanadi, Godavari, Krishna, Kaveri (and their main tributaries).
- Flowing into the Arabian Sea: Indus, Narmada, Tapti (and their main tributaries).
